Financial Notes

The Fact Act

The Fair Credit Reporting Act (FACT ACT) enhances the ability of consumers to combat identity theft, increases the accuracy of consumer reports, and allows consumers to exercise greater control regarding the type and amount of marketing solicitations they receive. This notice has been provided to you as required by Section 217 of the Fair and Accurate Transactions Act of 2003.

Furnishing Negative information to Consumer Reporting Agencies.

We may provide/have provided information to the credit bureaus about an insolvency, delinquencies, late payments, or defaults on your account. Always ensure the minimum amount due is paid on time each month to prevent negative information being reported to the credit bureaus.

Your financial well-being depends on maintaining a clean credit report.

A credit report provides insight on how financially responsible you are. Negative information could impact your credit score. Lower scores can result in higher interest rates, lower credit limits and possible denials.
